

Permanent Crown

Your permanent crown is checked for fit and then cemented. You can eat on your crown immediately but it is wise to chew on the opposite side for a day or so to allow the nerves to settle down following treatment. It is not uncommon for the permanent crown to be a little cold sensitive for a few weeks afterwards. A balanced bite is important so please be sure to inform me if you feel you have a “high” bite on any new crown.

Even with your perfectly fitted crown, it is important to floss the margins next to the gum line below the contact area to prevent periodontal disease and dental decay.

It is important to have your new crown checked regularly and cleaned by our hygienist. With regular hygiene appointments the permanent crown should last you many years.
